Healthcare Litigation

Thorpe Shwer offers a team of attorneys with substantial experience representing health insurance companies, medical practices, individual physicians and providers, nutraceutical companies, and other entities in a wide variety of healthcare-related disputes. The lawyers at our firm have represented healthcare clients in commercial litigation and vendor disputes, medical malpractice claims, unfair competition, restrictive covenants, non-competes, and misappropriation of trade secret claims, and practice group dissolution. We understand the need for specialized knowledge in representing health care providers, therefore we pride ourselves in learning the medicine, the nuances of the industry, and the interaction of the various disciplines. We also have experience representing health insurers facing bad faith claims, litigating contract issues, and defending coverage denials in administrative hearings, arbitration, and state and federal court litigation.
