Insurance Coverage and Bad Faith

A corporate defendant involved in litigation is often forced into a two-front conflict – one with the plaintiff and the other with its insurance carrier. Thorpe Shwer attorneys are well-versed in navigating clients through all aspects of coverage disputes. From preparing forceful responses to reservation of rights letters and coverage denial decisions and prompting carriers to reverse positions, to prosecuting declaratory judgment and bad faith actions, our attorneys know what it takes to get the outcomes sought by our clients. We combine a comprehensive knowledge of insurance laws with a deep familiarity of industry operations to ensure our clients receive the full benefit of the insurance bargain for which they paid.
