Railroad Law

Thorpe Shwer has one of the most active transportation law practices in Arizona, and routinely represents some of the nation's largest railroads. We are recognized as a leading firm in virtually every major area of rail litigation, and our experience in high-profile cases has given us a thorough understanding of the complex and evolving issues in rail transportation law. Thorpe Shwer lawyers have defended railroads for decades in Federal Employers Liability Act (FELA) matters, grade crossing cases, premises liability lawsuits, commercial controversies, and environmental actions.
